A casual American-style restaurant is breaking into Connecticut with a new location at Canton's The Shops at Farmington Valley.

Officials said a new 110 Grill is slated to debut at the shopping center, on Albany Turnpike, sometime this spring. The eatery is currently being built, a company spokeswoman said Monday.

110 Grill has been steadily growing its Northeast footprint in recent years. The Canton location will mark the 32nd location for the five-year-old restaurant group, which recently launched several new locations in Massachusetts and New York.

“With the addition of 110 Grill, we can now offer our shoppers eight different dining options all with a variety of different cuisines,” Elizabeth Ackerman, general manager of the shopping center said in a statement. “110 Grill brings an approachable, sophisticated dining experience to the Shops... .”

In Canton, 110 Grill will serve lunch and dinner seven days a week, offering its signature modern-American fare and gluten-free and dietary restricted menus. 110 Grill will also sell a wide variety of wines, beers and cocktails from its signature horseshoe bar. The restaurant’s full list of offerings can be found on its website.

Established in 2004, The Shops shopping center offers more than 45 specialty stores and eateries including ShopRite, Kohl’s, Dick’s Sporting Goods, Barnes & Noble, Talbots, Old Navy, Sephora and J.Crew, among others.
